Art Unit: 1618

Claims 1-21 are presented for examination.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nelson et al. (U.S. Patent 4,490,389) in view of Fritsch et al. (U.S. Patent 5,445,827).

Art Unit: 1618

Nelson et al. teach the use of ascorbic acid in combination with tromethamine in a contact lens solution. See column 3, lines 5-10 and column 4, lines 34-40. The above reference differs from the claimed invention in using L-ascorbic acid or the addition of anti-inflammatory agent in some of the dependent claims. Fritsch et al. teach the use of ascorbic acid, an anti-inflammatory agent in combination with agents such as lysine, arginin and N-methyl glucosamine in a pharmaceutical formulation. See column 2, lines 35-45 and column 3, lines 14-20. It would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to use L-ascorbic acid, considering that the stereoisomers have the same activity as the racemic mixture with the different degree of effectiveness. To add an anti-inflammatory agent to ascorbic acid mixture would have also been obvious to a person skilled in the art, considering that Fritsch et al. teach the addition of such agents to ascorbic acid as old.

One skilled in the art would have been motivated to combine the teachings of the above references, since one relates to the use of ascorbic acid in combination with the claimed amines such as tromethamine in a pharmaceutical composition and the other relates to the addition of an anti-inflammatory agent to an organic base and ascorbic acid. The substitution of one anti-inflammatory agent for another would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art in the absence of evidence to the contrary. The determination of optimum proportions or amounts is considered to be within the skill of the artisan.
